Thisbookdoesn'thelpatall.ViewsReadEditViewhistory.Receiving an ARC did n I like the idea of this kind of book, helping children to deal with something really difficult. This story of ten-year-old identical twins Ruby and Garnet, who lose their mother and have to come to terms not only with their dad's new love but also with growing up and growing apart, is a model of Wilson's exuberant and confessional storytelling style, in which Ruby and Garnet take it in turns to tell the story.
